11th UEFA European Women's Under-17 Championship, 2017/18 PRESS KIT

UEFA and Lithuanian Football Federation (LFF) welcomes media representatives to the 11th UEFA European Women's Under-17 Championship finals that will take place from 9 to 21 May, 2018 in Lithuania.

Lithuania will stage the Women's U17 final tournament from 9 to 21 May 2018 – the fifth such finals since the championship's expansion to eight teams – following in the footsteps of England, Iceland, Belarus and the Czech Republic. It is Lithuania's first major women's tournament though they hosted the 2013 men's U19 EURO.

- The final tournament

- The eight qualifiers are split into two groups of four in the draw.

Group A: Lithuania (hosts), Germany (holders), Finland, Netherlands

Group B: Poland, Spain, Italy, England

- The sides play each other in a round-robin format, with the top two teams in each group progressing to the semi-finals.
- The tournament also acts as UEFA's qualifier for the 2018 FIFA U-17 Women's World Cup from 13 November 1 to December that year in Uruguay, with the three berths available going to the two finalists and a winner of a play-off between the two beaten teams in the last four.

Schedule:

Group matches: 9, 12 and 15 May

Semi-finals: 18 May

FIFA U-17 Women's World Cup play-off and Final: 21 May

ROAD TO LITHUANIA

The UEFA European Women's Under-17 Championship was launched in 2007/08 and revamped in 2013/14. It consists of three distinct stages: two qualifying rounds and an eight-team final tournament.

- Qualifying round (September – October 2017)

The competition begins with one-venue four-team mini-tournaments, although the nations with the highest UEFA coefficients may be given byes to the second qualifying round. The winners and runners-up of the groups go through along with the required number of third-placed teams with the best record against the first and second-placed teams, to ensure there are 28 sides in the next phase.

History of the competition

The UEFA European Women's Under-17 Championship was launched for the 2007/08 season, having been approved by the UEFA Executive Committee on 22 May 2006.

The decision to begin the annual competition followed the inauguration of the biennial FIFA U-17 Women's World Cup starting in 2008 – the European tournament acts as a qualifier when it falls the same year as the global finals – and also allowed UEFA to further underline its commitment to women's football and recognise the continual increase of activities in this sector.

UEFA also hoped that the new championship would encourage and motivate those member associations not currently taking part in a women's European competition to do so.

UEFA's expectations were exceeded when 40 nations registered a team for the first edition, with the first qualifying round draw held on 19 February 2007. For the first season it was decided that four teams would progress to the finals, and UEFA itself acted as the host in its Swiss base of Nyon. Germany were to emerge champions ahead of France, Denmark and England, who all qualified for the World Cup.

The following year Germany retained the title with a 7-0 final defeat of Spain while France beat Norway to finish third. Spain went one better in 2010 with a penalty shoot-out win against the Republic of Ireland, who had ended Germany's run in the semi-finals, and Jorge Vilda's side successfully defended the trophy in 2011 – overcoming France with a last-gasp goal.

Germany reclaimed the crown 12 months later, knocking out Spain in the second qualifying round before a penalty shoot-out victory in the final against a team falling just short for the third time: France, who nonetheless went on to win the subsequent FIFA U-17 Women's World Cup in Azerbaijan. In 2013, after Germany had failed to qualify for the first time, Poland took their maiden women's title, edging out Sweden in the final.

That was the last four-team event in Nyon. From 2013/14 the finals were expanded to an eight-sided tournament with different hosts each year. Germany triumphed in the first edition of the larger finals in England. Spain then managed a third success in Iceland in 2015 before losing the 2016 final on penalties to Germany in front of the competition's first 10,000-plus crowd in Belarus. Germany again beat Spain on penalties in the 2017 final in the Czech Republic.
